CARNAHAN

From various accountings on the internet, my Carnahan line originated from Scotland. Several genealogy files begin the generations of Carnahan families with William Carnahan, born about 1455 in Aberdeen, Scotland. Numerous generations follow before the first Carnahans are reported in the state of Pennsylvania. The focal point of my particular ancestry seems to be with the family of James and Margaret Janny Carnahan. James was reportedly born 19 October 1692 in Legoniel (County Antrim), Ireland - he married Margaret Janny on 4 August 1718, in Dublin. According to the reported birth locations of the later children of James and Margaret, it appears the family arrived in the United States, and settled in the region of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, some time between 1720 and 1723. The known children of James and Margaret Janny Carnahan were: William (born about 1712, Ireland), Joseph (born 11 May 1715, Ireland), James Alexander (born 1 July 1719, Ireland), John (born 16 November 1720, Ireland) and Mary Jane (born 1723, Cumberland County, PA). The ancestral branch of this research follows from James Alexander Carnahan (1719-1790). Many of the Carnahan branches settled in the Pennsylvania counties of Allegheny and Westmoreland. The earliest signs I have of my direct Carnahan branch begin in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania.

The first confirmed Carnahan ancestor in this research record is my sixth and fifth great-grandparents, David and Thomas, who are first listed in the 1810 Westmoreland County, PA census in Washington Township. Thanks to the information provided by Thelma Kifer, wife of 4th cousin, Jeffrey Kifer, many blank spots in my data were filled.

My fourth great-grandfather, James Carnahan, was born in Westmoreland County, PA around 1806. Future wife of James, Mary (Polly) Fitz-Randolph, and her family were from Crawford County, PA. James and Mary "Randolph" were married around 1823, in Armstrong County, PA - Mary was the daughter of William and Mary Smith Fitz-Randolph.

I have collected Watterson data along the way in my research because of the reported marriage of my third great-grandfather, Taylor Carnahan to Barbara Watterson around 1854 in Clarion County, PA. Research is abundant on the Watterson line but an actual connection to Barbara Watterson is eluding me.

Terry Davis (Carolyn Mitchell, Harry , Taylor Mitchell, Minnie Carnahan, Taylor Carnahan)

¹ I have seen a record on an unnamed child born to William and Grizelda Carnaghan in October 1785 – this could possibly be a sibling to Thomas but no verified connection is made at this time. In the 1810 and 1820 census indexes there is a William Carnahan listed in Madison (Armstrong County), PA.

FITZ-RANDOLPH

The origins of the Fitz-Randolph line in this research is reported to be from the Nottingham region of England - from royal descendants of the Duke of Westmoreland Randolph, in the 1400's.² Numerous generations pass before the first Fitz-Randolph steps onto the soil of America, he was Edward Fitz-Randolph (1607 – abt. 1683).

Edward Fitz-Randolph was born on 5 July 1607 and baptized at Sutton in Ashfield, Nottinghamshire, England. He arrived at Scituate, Massachusetts on the ship "Griffin", in 1634. Edward married Elizabeth Blossom, on 10 May 1637 in Middlesex County, New Jersey. Elizabeth was the daughter of Thomas and Anne Blossom of Leyden, Holland. According to the book titled, "Northwestern New Jersey", by William Penn Vail, the parents of Elizabeth Blossom had difficulty in making their way to America, at first.

The first Fitz-Randolph of my direct ancestry to be born in America, join the Quaker faith, and settle the region of Middlesex County, New Jersey, was my 9th great-grandfather, Nathaniel. Nathaniel Fitz-Randolph was born on 15 May 1642 in Barnstable County, Massachusetts. In 1662, he married Mary Holley, daughter of Joseph and Rose Holley. A biography on Nathaniel describes the circumstance of Nathaniel's departure from Massachusetts.

Nathaniel's son, Edward was born in 1666 Barnstable County, MA. Edward married Katherine Hartshorne in 1704; Edward and Katherine Fitz-Randolph lived in Middlesex County, NJ until their deaths. Their son, Robert, was born on 19 July 1712, in Middlesex County, and married Catherine Taylor³ on 30 December 1737. The last son of record for Robert and Catherine Taylor Fitz-Randolph was Taylor Fitz Randolph.

On 21 August 1756, Taylor Fitz Randolph was born in Middlesex County, NJ. Taylor married Mary Baum in 1783. Taylor's older brother, Robert, journeyed from New Jersey to Crawford County, Pennsylvania. I tracked Robert Fitz-Randolph descendants in Crawford County from the earliest time when he was recorded in the county. Documentation on the history of "Crawford County, Pennsylvania", by Alfred Huidekoper, provides more Fitz Randolph family information.

Although I know the movements of Robert Fitz Randolph, I am unsure of the path that his brother Taylor took. From an internet source, I learned that Taylor was the father of my 5th great-grandfather, William - I recorded clues from early census indexes, trying to prove the relationship.

I found Tay. F. Randolph, in the 1810 census, residing in Indiana County, PA, an adjoining county to Armstrong County where I find William Randolph. In 1810, William is neighbored with Abram Randolph who, like Tay. F. Randolph, does not show up in later census reports - it could be possible they joined the 1812 War effort with brother, Robert, and did not return. An Armstrong County biography on Erasmus H. Randolph, mentions father John (b. 1805) and John's mother, Mary, who raised her family alone in PA after her husband died around 1812 in New Jersey. I still have further research to do in this time frame to confirm reported family links.

William Fitz Randolph was born on 1 December 1783 in Middlesex County, NJ. He is reported to have married Mary Phillippa Smith about 1799. William Fitz-Randolph's reported death date is 1855 in New Athens, PA; his wife's reported death date is 1852. His daughter, Mary, married James Carnahan about 1823. James and Mary gave birth to my third great-grandfather, Taylor Carnahan, in 1834.

WATTERSON

The Wattersons of this record begin with John and Katherine who came from Alsace France and settled in the Lehigh River area of Nortampton County, Pennsylvania. During the French and Indian Wars, on April 4, 1756 the elder Wattersons and one of their children were massacred at their home. Below is an accounting of the attack that was found on the Internet.

Some time ago there was a story about the siblings of James Watterson on a bulletin board like this one. It seems that on 4 Apr 1756 the nine year old James, his five year old sister Susannah and an infant sibling were proceeding to home when they were told by a friendly Indian not to go home because some bad Indians were attacking the children's parents. According to the testimony as handed down by Susannah Watterson, she remembered that upon being told this her brother ran back to his parents and she assumed he was massacred with them. She, however, grabbed her infant brother and ran to a neighbor. After the incident, she was "farmed out". We have no further knowledge of what happened to the infant brother. The name "James Watterson" was passed on as given names to a number of her descendants: James Watterson Showalter; James Watterson Jackson, etc. Evelyn (Abraham) Benson, a granddaughter of Elizabeth (Showalter) Jackson, and a g granddaughter of Susannah was a historian, and discovered the report made of the massacre on April 4, 1756, at the Pennsylvania Archives in Philadelphia in which John and Catherine Watterson are listed as victims, but not the 9-year-old boy. According to the date of the massacre, James would have been born ca. 1747, and if she were 5, she would have been born ca. 1751. Susannah married Ulrich Showalter ca. 1769. According to her tombstone in the Showalter section of the I.O.O.F. Cemetery, Smithfield, PA she died July 30, 1815. Apparently, the descendants of both James and Susannah Watterson were unaware of the other survival until recently.⁴

Massacre survivor, James Watterson (1747-1837) is my fifth great-grandfather. James and his descendants settled in the region of Armstrong and Clarion counties, PA. I have spent many hours trying to decipher some inconsistencies in census records and reported lore on the Internet. The only solid leads I have are the families of Wattersons, Carnahans, and Rudolphs that lived in close proximity of each other for many years in Madison, Armstrong County and later Madison, Clarion County – it is in this area where a number of my grandparents resided going back to the early 1800's. Through intense census record scrutiny I have reasonably ascertained that my third great-grandmother, Barbara Waterson (1834-1874) was the daughter of James, Jr. (1791-1850) and Margaret McClatchey (1789-1849) Watterson and Granddaughter of James, Sr. (1747-1837) and Catherine De Tar (1744-1820) Watterson. This assumption is made based on the fact that the only female Watterson in the 5-9 age range in 1840 Madison, Pennsylvania is in the household of James Watterson, Jr. Things would be a lot more certain if I could actually locate a 16 year old Barbera Watterson in the 1850 census.

I am still researching a couple different possibilities for Barbara's parentage... James, Jr. brother, Jacob of nearby Perry TWP in Armstrong county, has an unknown female in the 5-9 age range in his 1840 household.

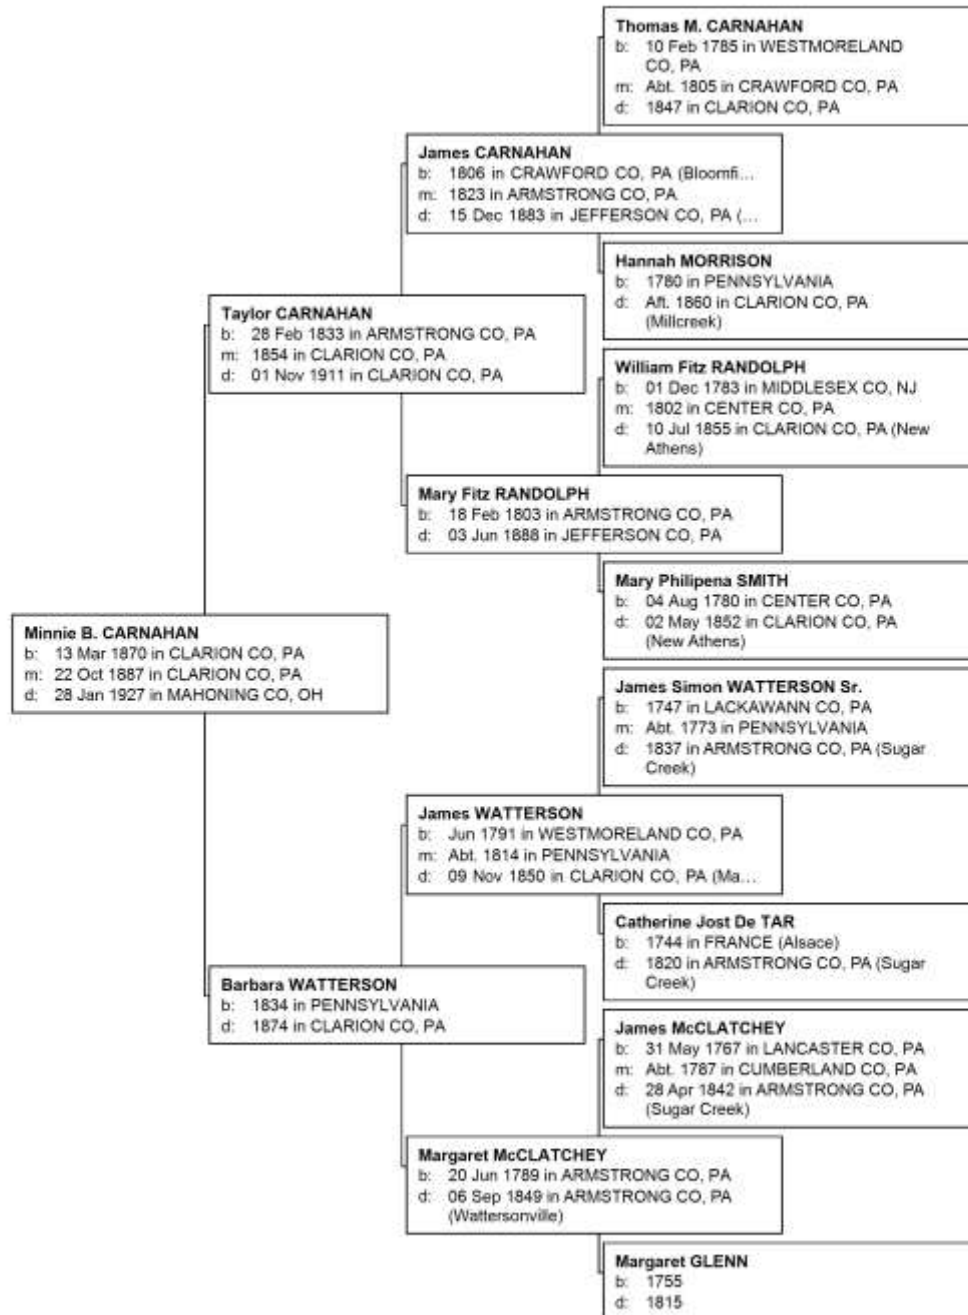

Another lead I am checking on... James, Jr. brother, John S. Watterson (1774-1853) seemed to traverse between Westmoreland and Armstrong county – his first wife, Regina Eck of Westmoreland County had a sister named Barbara – a name that could have been carried down to one of John's daughters.

Barbara Watterson married Taylor Carnahan, son of James and Mary Fitz Randolph Carnahan around 1854 in Clarion County, Pennsylvania. Their daughter, Minnie Carnahan was my 2X great-grandmother.

⁸ William Fitz-Randolph's reported death date is 1855 in New Athens, PA; his wife's reported death date is 1852. His daughter, Mary Fitz-Randolph, married James Carnahan about 1823. James and Mary gave birth to my third great-grandfather, Taylor Carnahan, in 1834. Mary Fitz-Randolph had a brother and grandfather named Taylor.

⁹ Jacob (b. 1777), son of James Watterson, Sr. (b. 1747).

¹⁰ Jacob is the son of John Watterson (b. 1774).

¹⁸ Reported as Taylor, Carnahan in the 1870 census. I could not locate Taylor Carnahan in the 1860 census.

¹⁹ Barbara Watterson Carnahan, first wife of Taylor, reportedly died in 1875 – documentation still needs to be located. There are longstanding Watterson families in the region but a connection has not yet been made to who Barbara's parents were.

²⁴ Mary Walls Carnahan reported 2 living children of 2 in this census (this would be Maggie Walls b. 1850 and Edward Carnahan b. 1875) and a marriage of 26 years. Some time around 1853 Taylor Carnahan was married to his first wife, Barbara – she and Taylor are in the 1870 Census. By 1880, his wife was Mary A. Carnahan. According to the 1887 Clarion County, Pennsylvania marriage application of my great-great-grandparents, Wilson Mitchell and Minnie Carnahan, the parents of Minnie B. Carnahan were Taylor and Mary A. Carnahan – I believe Mary A. is actually Minnie's step-mother. In the 1880 Clarion County census record, Taylor and Mary A. Carnahan reported a step-daughter named Maggie Walls living in their household – follow-on information from internet sources supports the fact that Taylor's second wife was Mary A. Walls (1832 – 1906). According to Minnie Carnahan's death certificate, the maiden name of her mother, as reported by Wilson Mitchell, was Watterson. According to the information provided by Thelma Kifer, Taylor was in fact married to Barbara Waterson first (she died around 1875) - later, Taylor married Mary A. Walls. I still need to acquire documentation for my records.

²⁵ James Carnahan reported 6 of 7 children living and a marriage of 15 years.

²⁶ Edgar Carnahan reported 2 of 2 children living and a marriage of 3 years.

²⁷ Cameron Carnahan reported 3 of 3 children living and a marriage of 8 years.

Edward Fitz-Randolph

Mr Lathrop says, 'The young Master Fitzrandolphe' built in 1636, the 38th house constructed in Scituate. Having provided himself with a home he married, May 10, 1637, Elizabeth, daughter of Deacon Thomas Blossom of the Leyden and Plymouth churches. He joined Mr Lathrop's church in Scituate May 14, 1637, and his wife joined at Barnstable August 27, 1643. He sold his house in that town to Deacon Richard Sealis, and removed in the spring of 1639 to Barnstable, and built a house on his lot containing eight acres, bounded east by the road to Hyanis. In 1649, Edward Fitzrandolphe removed to his farm in West Barnstable, 'a double great lot', containing 120 acres of upland, bounded north by the meadows, east by the Bursley farm, south by the commons, and west by the lands of Mr Thomas Dexter. In 1669 he and several families from the Cape removed to New Jersey. In October 1683 his widow was living in New Piscataqua, New Jersey. He is called in 'deeds' a yeoman, or farmer, and does not appear to have been employed in any official station. He had received a good education for those times, and as Mr Lathrop styles him 'Master' he probably belonged to a good family. He came probably from the west of England.³²

Elizabeth Blossom

In 1620, Elizabeth and her parents Thomas and Anne sailed on the 'Speedwell' with the 'Mayflower', but the Speedwell proving unseaworthy, both ships sailed back. In 1629, the 'Mayflower' sailed again, Elizabeth and her parents made the voyage and came to Salem, Massachusetts. Thomas Vail and wife Anne Blossom, with Elizabeth, aged 9 years, came to Salem, Mass, on the 'Mayflower' in 1629.³³

Nathaniel Fitz-Randolph

In 1667, Nathaniel, who some years before had joined the Quakers, and had in consequence suffered much persecution from the Plymouth government, exchanged his house in Barnstable for land in Woodbridge, and soon after removed therewith his family. In 1693/94, he represented Woodbridge in the Provincial Assembly³⁴. On the death of Jas. Bollen, first Secretary of the Province, in 1683, he was one of the guardians of his children; and on the establishment of the Woodbridge Monthly Meeting of Friends in 1706, he became a prominent member of it; and for years the meeting was held at his home. It is believed that nearly all the Fitz-Randolphs in the Woodbridge record, are his descendants.³⁵

Fitz-Randolph's in Crawford County, Pennsylvania

BY ALFRED HUIDEKOPER (extracted paragraphs)

Meadville, August 1, 1846

In reply to the circular received last year, from the Society, I would say that, though a native of the county, I am too young to be acquainted personally with its earliest history, but have employed my first leisure time in procuring such information as I could, from the most authentic sources within my reach. But few of the first pioneers to this county are now living, and but a small number of those who do survive have minds which have stood the wear of time and infirmities of age sufficiently to retain and describe, with satisfactory clearness, the events of early life.

In doing justice to one of them, at the present time, I should say, that many of the facts hereinafter related, I have gathered from the lips of Mr. Edward Randolph, now (with the exception of Mr. Cornelius Van Horn) the oldest settler in the commonwealth, west of French Creek. Though young at the time, Mr. Randolph took a prominent part in the first settlement of the county, was occasionally employed by the officers of government, and had otherwise an opportunity of becoming well-informed about its early history. For fifty-seven years he has lived in this county, forty-nine of which have been spent upon the farm where he now resides, about two miles west of Meadville. Tall, erect, venerable, and active, his vigour at the age of seventy-four, adds another to the many instances of a hardy constitution, acquired by exposure in youth to the vicissitudes of a border life. When I called upon him, I found him at work alone in his sugar camp, and while seated on a log in front of his boiling-kettles, recounting his reminiscences of past events, he seemed indeed an appropriate historian of times when men's homes were the open air, and their whole stock of furniture and iron vessel like the one before us.

That part of the state of Pennsylvania which is now called Crawford County, was separated from the county of Alleghany in the year 1800, and was first explored by white American citizens, with the view of making a permanent settlement, in the year 1787. North of it, at Leboeuf, the French, and south of it, at Venango, the French and English, had previously had military posts, and a few white men were found by the first pioneers residing among the Indians, by whom they had been captured during the revolutionary war, and whose manners and habits of living they had adopted.

(1787.) The first persons who visited the county to examine its character, with the intention of occupying it, were David and John Mead, who, escaping from the difficulties they had encountered, in the conflicting claims between Connecticut and Pennsylvania, left their homes in Northumberland, in the summer of 1787, and, traveling westward, explored the valley of French Creek. They found the soil rich and productive, and many of the finest portions of the valley covered with herbage and grass, the forest trees having apparently been long previously removed by some prior occupants of the county, giving to the cleared portions, at this time, much the appearance of a natural prairie. Prepossessed with the looks of the county, the Meads, on their return, made a favourable report, and in the spring of 1788, a small company, consisting of David Mead, John Mead, Joseph Mead, Thomas Martin, John Watson, James F. Randolph, Thomas Grant, Cornelius Van Horn, and Christopher Snyder, started from Sunbury, with the intention of making the valley of French Creek their future place of residence.

(1789.) In this year Frederick Baum, Robert Fits Randolph, and Darius Mead, the father of David and John Mead, brought out their families. Sarah Mead, a daughter of David Mead, was born during the same season, being the first birth in Crawford County (as now organized). A saw-mill was commenced to be built, by Matthew Wilson, for David Mead, and was completed the following year. In the fall, Cornelius Van Horn made a second visit to French Creek, and remained until Christmas, when he returned to New Jersey.

In the spring of the following year (1790), the saw-mill having been finished, the little colony, with characteristic enterprise, assumed the importance of an exporting community, and the first raft of boards that ever descended the Alleghany River, was taken from this mill, and, together with a raft of logs, was run to Pittsburg. The hands on board were, Edward Randolph, John Ray, William Wilson, James Randolph, Frederick Baum, Tunis Elson, and John Gregg. The lumber was sold at one dollar and fifty cents per hundred, to Major Isaac Craig, quartermaster in the army at Pittsburg. A canoe loaded with baggage and provisions, for Meadville, had been pushed up the river, by James F. Randolph and Joseph Mead, as early as 1788.

At the time of its first occupation, Crawford County appears to have been a kind of boarder or neutral territory, between the eastern Indians or Six Nations, who had made treaties of peace with the whites, and the western Indians, who still remained hostile. The nearest settlement or village of the eastern Indians, was that of Cornplanter, on the Alleghany River, at Tinneshantago, a word which, in the Indian dialect, signifies, "burnt town," the village having been once destroyed by fire, by order of General Brodhead. The nearest settlements of the western Indians were at Cuyahoga and Sandusky. The neutral ground was occupied principally by nomadic parties of Indians, who lived by hunting, and a few Indian families, who had cabins along the valley of French Creek, and at the mouth of the Coneaut Creek, in Ohio. Among the latter, living at the mouth of Coneaut Creek, was an Indian chief of the name of Canadaughta, to whom, and his three sons (Flying Cloud, Big Sun, and Standing Stone), the white settlers were indebted for many acts of kindness, and friendly protection, bestowed upon them on their first arrival in the west.

(1791.) About the first of April in this year (1791), Flying Cloud gave notice to the settlers on French Creek, that the western Indians (Wyandotts, Shawanees, &c.) were meditating an invasion. Immediate preparation was made for the approaching attack. On the second day of April, all the women and children were collected and sent in canoes down French Creek to the garrison at Franklin, a small military post established in 1787, under the care of Captain Hart. In connexion with this incident, and the deeds of blood perpetrated by the western Indians which followed it, it is pleasant to record some of the strongly marked acts of kindness shown to the settlers by the Indians who were friendly. On the occasion referred to, Halftown (a full-blooded Indian chief, and a half-brother to Cornplanter), of whose fidelity the early settlers speak in the emphatic language, that he was as true a man as General Washington, sent six of his warriors on each side of the stream, to keep pace with the canoes, and guard them against an ambuscade and attack from shore.

Halftown then placed himself at the head of his remaining force, amounting to some fifteen warriors, and with the white settlers who had remained, lay in wait during the whole day, on the east bank of the creek, at a fording-place (now Kennedy's Bridge), in expectation that the hostile Indians (of whom eleven had been seen by William Gregg in the morning, on Davis's Hill, four miles below) would select that as the most convenient place for crossing the stream. The day being spent without any further appearance of the enemy, the Indian chief and his men passed the night at the house of David Mead, a double log cabin, before alluded to. The next day, the settlers took their cattle and movable effects, and left for Franklin. They progressed but six miles, and encamped for the night on the east bank of the creek, opposite Bald Hill, in one of the old prairie-like clearings. On the fourth of April, they reached Franklin in safety, having been accompanied the whole distance by Halftown, and his men. Mr. Randolph, who was along on the occasion referred to, and who was otherwise well acquainted with this chief, in describing his personal appearance speaks of him as having been about five feet ten inches high, well made, with an unusually good countenance, indicating great intelligence and most unwavering firmness.

I am not aware of any tables of descent that have been preserved, of the families of the first settlers of the county. A memoir of General David Mead, the pioneer to the waters of French Creek, is given in Alden's Alleghany Magazine, on page 77. He was born at Hudson, in the state of New York, about the year 1751. In the year '74, he was married to Agnes Wilson, sister of the Honourable Thomas Wilson, of Northumberland. In '96, having lost his first wife, he was again married, to Janet Finney, daughter of Robert Finney.

Robert Fits Randolph, another of the first settlers, came from Essex County, in the state of New Jersey; his ancestors came originally from Scotland. He was born about the year 1741; and in 1812, at the advanced age of seventy-one, on an alarm's being given of the war with England, he started for Erie, with four of his sons and two of his grandsons, to volunteer in the service of his country. He travelled some fifteen miles to the Coneauttee Lake, in Erie County, where he was persuaded by some of his relatives to return. He retained his vigour many years afterwards, and died at Meadville, at a very advanced age.

Edward Randolph, a son of Robert Fits Randolph, and heretofore spoken of as one of the first settlers, was born in what is now Lehigh, formerly Northampton County, on the first day of March, 1772. In 1773, his father moved from Northampton to Northumberland, and in 1789, the old man and his wife, with some of their children, viz., Sarah, Taylor, James, Edward, and Robert, in the month of November, emigrated to what is now the county of Crawford. The route they pursued passed by the places where Bellefonte and Milesburg now stand, and through Chinkakemoose (the Indian name for Oldtown), by Franklin.

Of the family of Robert Randolph, three sons, viz., Taylor, Esaac, and Edward, still survive. The latter, who was seventeen years of age when he first moved west, was a volunteer in the army in the year '91, and did duty at Franklin from the first of April to the first of July. He then went to Pittsburg, and in the spring of '92, entered the service of the United States, in transporting provisions from Pittsburg to Franklin. During this year, he and Daniel Ransom were sent by government to build a mill for Cornplanter, at Tinneshantago. Ransom, who was the millwright, for some reason did not build the mill, and after remaining at Cornplanter's village for four months, Mr. Randolph returned to his former occupation of transporting provisions. During the year '93 he carried a part of the time to Franklin, and a portion of the season to Meadville, for Ensign Bond. In September of this year, he was employed by Major Isaac Craig, to take charge of a boat loaded with ammunition, under Colonel Clark, to Cincinnati; the latter being on his way to join General Wayne. In December, Mr. Randolph returned to Pittsburg, and from thence went to Meadville. On the first of May, 1794, he again descended to Pittsburg on a raft of boards from Mead's mill. At Freeport, then called Buffalo station, they were hailed from shore by the officers at the station, and took on board William Cousins, who had been wounded in his hip by the Indians, near the mouth of the Kiskeminetas Creek. A canoe had gone just before, bearing the body of John Carter, killed by the Indians, and Peter Kintner, wounded in the arm.

They were taken to their former home, about six miles above Pittsburg. On reaching Pittsburg, Mr. Randolph was employed by General John Wilkins, to go as an advance guard for Major Denny, from Pittsburg to Waterford, a distance of one hundred and twenty miles. At Meadville, Mr. Randolph became sick, and his brother, James Randolph, conducted Major Denny from thence to Waterford. Having returned to Pittsburg, Mr. Randolph, about the first of July, fell in with Captain John Heath, on his way with troops to Franklin, and they kept in company with their canoes. The party celebrated the fourth of July at Catfish Falls (about four miles above the Great Western Iron Works), feasting themselves upon a saddle of venison, and a big pike which they had captured in the river.

About the first of August, a soldier having been killed by the Indians, near Franklin, Captain Heath wrote to Robert F. Randolph, for some men competent to act as spies. He recommended Luke Hill, John Wentworth, John Baum, and Edward F. Randolph. Mr. Randolph engaged in this service, and served from the beginning of August to the beginning of September as a spy, and in carrying expresses from Waterford to Pittsburg. His only roads were Indian paths, and at night he bivouacked with no other protection than his blanket. In August, 1795, Mr. Randolph and his brother Taylor, were employed by Major Craig to go to Erie as teamsters, to help build the fort. Robert Randolph, their father, furnished three yoke, and Cornelius Van Horn one yoke of oxen for this purpose. Mr. Randolph worked at Erie until November, when he returned to Meadville. In 1797, he married Benjamin Wilson's daughter, Elizabeth Wilson, and settled on the farm where he now resides. In 1812, he was for three days at Erie with the troops, and went to Buffalo as teamster for the commissary.

There are many traces of Indian inhabitants still met with throughout the county. There were originally two circular forts about a mile below the present village of Meadville. The one in the valley, on the farm of Mr. Taylor Randolph, and the other a quarter of a mile below, on the bluff point of a high knoll, where a small stream puts into the creek, or now into the canal. The plough, and annual tillage of the soil, have now destroyed them. There was also a mound still to be seen a short distance above the fort, which stood in the plain. It is now nothing but a smooth eminence, some two or three feet high, and extending from north to south, some fifteen or twenty feet, and about twice as much from east to west. It is described, however, by Mr. Esaac Randolph, one of the oldest settlers, on whose farm it stands, as having been composed originally of two mounds, connected by a narrow neck between them. The material of one of the mounds, he represents as having been of gravel, and the other of alluvial earth. The ground around the mound is alluvial, without stone, and it is evident the material was carried from some distance to construct the mound, as there was no ditch or excavation near it, from which it could have been taken. The mound stands some thirty rods from the stream, where gravel is abundant. The fields in the neighbourhood abound with small pieces of Indian crockery, resembling common earthenware, except that it is not glazed, nor so well burned.

Carnahan History³⁶

There is a growing number of Carnahan/Carnaghan descendants who are interested in the family history. We almost always end up connecting with one another in Westmoreland County during the mid-to-late 1700's.

Apparently, there were several Carnahan families (brothers or cousins?) in Pennsylvania during that period. My branch ties into the Carnahan Blockhouse, which was one of the defense locations during the War of Independence. My ancestor, Adam Carnahan, was born in 1743 in PA, and was one of the "Blockhouse Carnahans" of Westmoreland County. Adam is listed by DAR as a patriot. He is buried in Poke Run Cemetery. There are several published accounts of an Indian attack on the Carnahan Blockhouse, in 1777, during which John Carnahan was killed by an Indian when he stepped outside to get a better shot at them.

The Carnahan family divided up, during the late 1700's and early 1800's. Some stayed in Pennsylvania. Others went south or westward, in search of adventure and a place of their own. My ancestor, John Carnahan, son of Adam, was born in 1779. John left Westmoreland County and went to the Louisiana Territory, as part of a military group. An entry in the Territorial Papers of the United States, dated November 27, 1805, lists John Carnahan as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Militia for the Western District of Orleans. He met Marcia (Mercy) Harrison. They married on October 9, 1808, in Natchez. They moved to Concordia Parish, just across the Mississippi River from Natchez. A couple of years later, they moved to a new area, along the Red River, west of Alexandria. John and Marcia are the progenitors of the Louisiana Carnahan family.

Norman Carnahan

The Carnahans (4 brothers - James, William, Joseph and John) came from Antrim County, Ireland, ca 1730-1733 and settled in the Newton Twp, Cumberland County area, Big Springs Church, Hugh McLaughlin district. John settled in Cumberland County, then Chester County and then settled in Bell Twp, Westmoreland County about 1769. Many of descendants remain there today. John's sons fought in the Revolutionary War and constructed the Carnahan block house for the protection of the settlers which was constructed about 1774.

Obituary Records

Mary A. Walls Carnahan (1832 – 1906)

At a little past high noon Thursday, February 28, 1906, after a long and distressing illness, Mrs. Mary A. Carnahan, wife of Taylor Carnahan, was called to her reward at the advanced age of 73 years, 4 months and 22 days. She leaves a husband, a daughter and a son, besides a large circle of friends and relatives, to mourn her loss. Mrs. Carnahan has been a member of the Methodist church for more than 40 years, and died in the triumphs of a Christian's faith and hope. A few evenings before she died she invited a company of friends and neighbors in to hold a prayer meeting at her home. After singing and praying with her for more than an hour she bade each one good-night, and expressed her perfect confidence in her Savior and a readiness to go to him when he called. She was a faithful wife, a loving mother and a kind neighbor, but a great sufferer, having been afflicted with asthma for many years. We cannot call her back, but we can go to her.

Wattersonville United Methodist Cemetery, Wattersonville, Armstrong Co, PA

THE WATTERSONVILLE CEMETERY, although not in Brady's Bend Township, lies just a few miles downriver from the town of East Brady, on the Armstrong County side of the Allegheny River. Ann M. Brooks of Syracuse, New York wrote to us in 1999 when she came into possession of a listing of the cemetery. She graciously shared it with us, and we reproduce her letter here. We did not take any pictures, but you may visit the cemetery by following Route 268 toward Kittanning, turning left just before Cowansville, where a sign directs you to Sherrett and to Lock 9 and the power station.

This is a scenic, winding road, and unless you have traveled it before, you will fear that you have lost your way several times before arriving at the cemetery. However, take heart and follow the marina signs. You will also see a sign for the Wattersonville Methodist Church, where the cemetery is located. Services are still held in this church, and the cemetery is tended and accessible. Most of the dates are from the mid-1800s through the early 1900s. We thank Ms. Brooks for her information and hope it is helpful.

Following is a letter and the interment listing from Ms. Brooks dated 21 May 1999. She received a copy of the listing from Annabelle Shetler and Mildred Thomas dated July 1986.⁴¹

I am looking for anyone researching the family of Jacob Watterson & Rebecca Hopper that lived in Sherritt, Armstrong Co. As far as I know these are their 11 children:

1. Juit Watterson
2. Mary Jane Watterson born 1838
3. William Henry Watterson born 1839
4. Anna Watterson born 1841 married John Minehart
5. Wallace Watterson born 1842 married Caroline
6. Marcus Watterson born 1847 married Mary
7. Martha Watterson born 1848
8. Phoebe Ann Watterson born 1849 married Thomas Reighard and they had 7 children
9. Melissa Watterson born 1850
10. Emma Watterson born 1851
11. Andrew Watterson born 1856.

Does anyone know who the parents were of William H. Watterson born 6/1855 and married 1880 Hannah Fair born 10/1853. In 1900 they are living in Perry Twp., Clarion Co. where William is a coal miner. By 1900 they had had 7 children but only 5 are living: Emory W. born 5/1881 married Lucinda, William Barton born 5/1882 married Nellie, Harry C. born 8/1885 died 10/28/1937 married Golda, Hannah M. born 9/1887 & Annie born 5/1893.

Thanks,

Good Morning,

Glad that those obits helped. No, I haven't found much out on Mary Ann Walls. Someone in a genealogy club found a Maggie Walls (her daughter) in orphan court Guardian 1858-1872 given to Fredrick Wahl, father Peter Wall. This information is from Wayne Wall of Butler, PA. That is quoted word for word. I'm not sure what is meant but neither she nor I have any more. She also mentioned a Wall Reunion being held last summer (July 20) in Belnap, PA. Maybe that will sent you in some direction. There is nothing about Barbara Watterson. If I come across anything. I'll be in touch.
